Healthy & Happy Families Start Here

A GUIDE FOR PARENTS AND CHILDREN TO EXPLORE TOGETHER

INCLUDES:

- A meaningful conversation between two friends
- Helpful tips for talking & listening to one another
- Fun games & activities for the whole family
This fotonovela is one in a series of three, which are designed to increase awareness of mental health and wellness options in our families and communities. The series includes characters that may represent someone you know: a mother realizing the impact of her negative words; a father who doesn’t know how to manage his stress; and a mother who turns to her faith leader for mental health guidance. These storylines are familiar to us because we know many people living with mental health challenges right now. They are our family members, friends, co-workers and neighbors, and they can live full and productive lives, not defined by their condition.

This fotonovela series is a project of the California Mental Health Services Authority (CalMHSA), an organization made up of county governments working to improve mental health outcomes for individuals, families and communities, and funded by counties through the voter-approved Mental Health Services Act (Prop 63). By creating innovative programs that equip communities with the tools, resources and information they need to foster wellness, Californians are opening their minds to a new understanding of mental health, which is as important as physical health.

You can be part of the solution and show your loved ones that Each Mind Matters:

- Accept people who experience mental health challenges in your family and community
- Support other parents who may be struggling with a mental health challenge in their families
- Teach children that it is unacceptable to disrespect people who are living with mental health challenges

FOR MORE INFORMATION on Each Mind Matters, California’s Mental Health Movement, visit: www.EachMindMatters.org

Funded by counties through the voter-approved Mental Health Services Act (Prop 63).
Why don’t you help out too? I’m having fun learning with my son!

When I get home I just want to have some beers in the backyard and try to escape.

I don’t drink too much. I just have a few beers at night. It’s the only way to deal with my headaches.

When I went to see the doctor, he told me about healthier ways I could deal with my stress.

When I cut back on drinking, I started to realize that my kids were growing up so fast and I was missing out.

The kids do ask me to help them with their homework or to go on a bike ride...

... But I just never have the energy.

You are their dad; they love you!

You know, I haven’t been to the doctor in years and my wife has been asking me to go. Maybe it’s time.

“WE ALL HAVE MENTAL HEALTH. EVERY NOW AND THEN, WE MAY NEED HELP. GETTING HELP EARLY CAN SAVE LIVES.”

— William Arroyo, M.D., Regional Medical Director of Los Angeles County Department of Mental Health’s Child, Youth and Family Administration
Hi Raul! How can I help you?

I've got these terrible headaches.

I see on your health questionnaire that you don't smoke but you do drink. How often?

I have a few beers every day, sometimes more if my headache is really bad.

So the drinking helps with the headache? Raul, when do the headaches happen?

After a long day at the shop. I come home tired, and then I can't help but start worrying about the future. It never ends.

What you are feeling is quite common. A lot of men feel the pressure of being the provider and the man of the house. But it's not good to use alcohol as a way to mask your feelings.

Raul, I recommend you talk to someone who is trained in mental health care, who can help you find new ways to cope with this stress.

I thought therapists weren't for men.

Ok, doctor. I'll give it a try.

I have a few beers every day, sometimes more if my headache is really bad.

After a long day at the shop. I come home tired, and then I can't help but start worrying about the future. It never ends.

Men, women and children alike experience a variety of mental health issues. It's important that we care for our minds as well as our bodies.

Raul makes an appointment with his primary doctor. Before entering the exam room he fills out the health questionnaire.

Raul calls the therapist, who helps him learn how to manage his symptoms.
Hey Gabriel! How are you, my friend?

Hey Raul. You’re in a good mood today!

I’m feeling a lot better lately. I went to the doctor, and he recommended I see a counselor for my stress.

Good for you!

I get to talk about what’s bothering me without any judgment, and I don’t have to take my stress home to my family. We’ve also started to take bike rides after dinner.

The kids must love that!

We all do.

Hey Raul. You’re in a good mood today!

I’m feeling a lot better lately. I went to the doctor, and he recommended I see a counselor for my stress.

Good for you!

I get to talk about what’s bothering me without any judgment, and I don’t have to take my stress home to my family. We’ve also started to take bike rides after dinner.

The kids must love that!

We all do.

Wellness Wisdom
from Dr. Sergio Aguilar-Gaxiola, M.D., Ph.D.
DIRECTOR, UC DAVIS CENTER FOR REDUCING HEALTH DISPARITIES, PROFESSOR OF CLINICAL INTERNAL MEDICINE

Q: Why is mental health important?
A: Our mental health supports our thinking and feeling, our mood, our ability to relate to others and to function in daily life. Sometimes we experience mental health challenges that disrupt our mental health, which take the form of medical illnesses like depression, anxiety or eating disorders.

Q: How common are mental illnesses?
A: Just like physical illnesses, mental illnesses are very common and nothing to be ashamed of. Research shows 1 in 4 American adults are living with a diagnosable mental illness in any given year. So, it’s almost certain that someone in your family needs your support.

Q: Can mental illnesses be treated?
A: Yes. With appropriate support and treatment, people can improve their symptoms and live happy, full and productive lives.

Q: Is there anything I can do to help if a friend or family member’s mental health is suffering?
A: Yes. Be supportive and encourage the person to see a doctor or counselor. Remind them that there is hope. Speak and act from a place of compassion and acceptance, rather than fear.

Q: How can I support my family’s mental health?
A: To support mental health and prevent mental illness, pay attention to triggers like stress and warning signs such as trouble sleeping or mood swings. Get routine medical care, and seek mental health care when you need it. Finally, take good care of yourself: sleep, healthy eating and regular physical activity are important to mental health and physical health.
Talking about Feelings

Getting to know our feelings can be one of the most confusing parts of growing up. In fact, many of us adults haven’t quite figured them out for ourselves yet! Feelings guide our thoughts and actions, so getting to know them is very important.

DID YOU KNOW?

Everyone has feelings. Some of us try to hide them, but they are always here inside.

Feelings are always changing. Sometimes we are sad. Other times we are happy. Usually, a sad feeling will be replaced by a happy feeling in time.

Our feelings – and other people’s feelings – are true for each of us in this moment. Even if we feel good, we can still accept that our friend or family member might not feel good at the same time. We cannot force ourselves or others to feel a certain way.

If sad feelings stick around too long, we can turn to someone we trust for support. This may be a family member, a friend, a faith leader, a counselor or a doctor.

Talking about feelings is good for our health. It feels good to talk about feeling good and being happy. It may not be so easy to talk about feeling sad, hurt, lonely or stressed, but talking about these feelings is the first step to feeling better.

When we try to hide our feelings or keep them inside, they don’t go away. They get stronger and stronger over time. They start to take control over our words and actions, even when we don’t want them to. By trying to ignore our feelings, we actually give them more power. They can even make us sick! It’s better to let them out by talking about them with people we trust.

DID YOU KNOW?

Talking about feelings is good for our health. It feels good to talk about feeling good and being happy. It may not be so easy to talk about feeling sad, hurt, lonely or stressed, but talking about these feelings is the first step to feeling better.

Helpful and Hurtful

Helpful

- Use sentences that start with “I feel”
- Make observations: “The dirty laundry is on the floor.”
- Name your feelings, and be specific: “I feel frustrated when I see clothes on the floor.”
- Express your needs: “I have a need for the house to be tidy, and for everyone to help.”
- Make a request: “Would you be willing to pick up your clothes in the next five minutes?”

Hurtful

- “You make me feel” or “Because of you”
- Make judgments: “How did I raise such a messy child?”
- Make others responsible for your feelings: “It makes me so mad when you don’t pick up after yourself.”
- Repress your needs: “No one cares about what I want anyway.”
- Make a demand: “Pick up your clothes or no dinner for you tonight!”

Here are ways to be helpful – not hurtful – when someone is sharing their feelings with us.

Helpful

- Listen with attentiveness
- Be respectful
- Show support and compassion
- Acknowledge feelings with “oh” or “I see”
- With young children, give a name to the feeling to help them understand it

Hurtful

- Interrupt or tell our own story
- Give advice or try to “fix” the feelings
- Criticize or blame
- Deny or ignore feelings
- Label feelings as bad, or tell a child they should not feel them
Information & Services

If you or someone you know needs help, there are resources available to assist you.

National Suicide Prevention Lifeline
www.SuicidePreventionLifeline.org
1-800-273-TALK (8255)

The National Suicide Prevention Lifeline provides free and confidential emotional support to people in suicidal crisis or emotional distress 24 hours a day, 7 days a week.

TO SEARCH FOR MORE LOCAL SERVICES ONLINE, VISIT:
www.California.NetworkofCare.org

Each Mind Matters
www.EachMindMatters.org

Each Mind Matters is California’s Mental Health Movement. Learn more, find community, discover true and inspiring stories of strength, and join the movement at EachMindMatters.org.

ReachOut
www.ReachOutHere.com
1-800-448-3000

ReachOut offers information and chat forums to help teens and young adults facing tough times and seeking support for their mental health.

Walk in Our Shoes
www.WalkInOurShoes.org

The Walk in Our Shoes campaign shares real stories from teens and young adults to give youth the facts about living with and overcoming mental health challenges.

SAMHSA
(Substance Abuse & Mental Health Services Administration)
National Mental Health Information Center
www.SAMHSA.gov
1-800-789-2647

SAMHSA is the agency within the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services that leads public health efforts to reduce the impact of substance abuse and mental illness on America’s communities.

Pain Isn’t Always Obvious

Suicide is Preventable
www.SuicidIsPreventable.org
1-800-273-8255

Know the Signs: Suicide is Preventable aims to help Californians recognize the warning signs of suicide. The campaign is built on three key messages: Know the signs. Find the words. Reach out.
MATCH the feelings with the face!

1. Angry
2. Sad
3. Happy
4. Silly
5. Tired
6. Worried
7. Surprised
8. Scared
9. Excited

FIND these words in the puzzle:
- FAMILY
- FEELINGS
- FRIEND
- HAPPY
- HEALTHY
- MAD
- SAD
- SCHOOL
- SMILE
- TALK

Can you draw a happy face?
Or a silly face?
Or a sad face?
Or a surprised face?
NAME THAT FEELING! Cut out each word and put them all in a bag. Each family member will select one word from the bag and silently act out the feeling that word represents using body and facial expressions. Whoever names the correct feeling gets a point! Continue until all feelings are named and add up points to find the winner.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Angry</th>
<th>Happy</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Excited</td>
<td>Frustrated</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Disappointed</td>
<td>Nervous</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Shy</td>
<td>Bored</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hopeful</td>
<td>Afraid</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sad</td>
<td>Jealous</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>