EACH MIND MATTERS
California’s Mental Health Movement
Stories of Hope, Resilience and Recovery
One in four adults lives with a diagnosable mental illness. Early support can save lives.

Be Part of the Solution: EachMindMatters.org
The California Mental Health Services Authority (CalMHSA) is excited to present this DVD containing 38 short, 2- to 6-minute videos that share the stories of Californians across the state whose lives have been affected by mental illness. This project is one way that counties, through their support of CalMHSA, are working to reduce the stigma and discrimination associated with mental illness in California.

This DVD is meant to supplement the documentary, A New State of Mind: Ending the Stigma of Mental Illness, a documentary that first aired on Public Broadcasting Service (PBS) stations statewide in May of 2013. This hour-long documentary showcased over 30 individuals with unique views on mental health challenges in California. However, in such a diverse state, we thought it was important to highlight as many perspectives as possible. Therefore, CalMHSA created a variety of short stories that represent a wide cross-section of California residents and share the previously untold stories of our friends and neighbors on their roads to recovery.
This booklet describes each video and its topics and themes. A guide that groups videos with similar topics and themes can be found on page 15. We hope you will use this DVD as a resource to educate and increase awareness about the stigma and discrimination of mental health challenges in your community.

If you have any questions or would like further information about the stories told on this DVD, please contact Jeanine Gaines at jgaines@rs-e.com. To learn more about the mental health movement and to take a pledge against the stigma associated with mental illness, visit EachMindMatters.org.

VIEWING SUGGESTIONS

All of these stories share a common thread of hope, resilience and recovery. We hope you are able to view them all, but if time does not allow, you can use the “theme groupings” below to create a screening list of those stories particularly suited to your specific area(s) of interest.

As you’ll see in these groupings, one major theme that emerged in the development of these stories is the dual stigma faced by many of those coping with mental illness who are also members of underserved or minority communities. With this in mind, we have provided additional viewing suggestions focusing on the five priority underserved audiences identified in the California Reducing Disparities Project.

WHY EACH MIND MATTERS

We all have mental health. As with our physical health, sometimes we are doing well, other times we could use some help. Our minds deserve the same attention as our bodies.

Early support and help for mental health challenges can reduce suffering and save lives. But not everyone who wants and needs help reaches out to get it. One of the greatest barriers to wellness is stigma.

• Stigma wrongly assumes that someone who is different from us is less of a person because of it.

• Stigma can be within us as individuals, families, communities and even institutions.

• Stigma creates fear, pain and injustice preventing people from reaching out to care for their minds as they would care for their bodies.

The elimination of stigma is essential to prevention, early intervention and support for those experiencing mental health challenges.

We can save lives and dollars tomorrow if we are willing to talk honestly about the realities of mental health today.
